HOME TO BE ON PILGRIMAGE — The home of Miss Julia-Mae DeJean will be featured on April 2, on the Coast Spring Pilgrimage. The event will begin at 10 a.m. with members of the Pascagoula Garden Club serving as hostesses.

Original handcrafted, oak furniture adorns DeJean house on Pilgrimage

By JUDY JOHNSON
Mississippi Press Staff

A home built by a young man for his bride-to-be, and furnished by the families of the young couple, will be among those opened to the public on Sunday, April 2, when Pascagoula hosts its portion of the 42nd annual Gulf Coast Spring Pilgrimage.

The home of Miss Julia-Mae DeJean, 3603 Frederic St., will be open to the public from 1 till 5 p.m. Members of the Pascagoula Garden Club will serve as hostesses. Mrs. Julius E. Wiggins is president of the club and Mrs. James B. Norwood and Mrs. I.D. Stewart are co-chairing its participation in this year's event.

The Pilgrimage begins March 27 in Hancock County and concludes April 8 in Biloxi, and is sponsored by the Mississippi Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs. No admission is charged to view homes and other sites on the Pilgrimage, and brochures with complete details are available at local chambers of commerce.

THE DEJEAN HOME was built by Valsian Pierre DeJean, who came to the coast in 1884, when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Paul DeJean moved to Scranton (later Pascagoula).

Valsian was an only child, three years old at the time of the family's move. His parents established the DeJean and Mitchell General Mercantile and Ship Chandlery business in the bustling town of Scranton, and Valsian grew up to become associated in business with his father.

In 1906 Valsian had the home that now stands on Frederic constructed by local builder Ambrose Linder. The home was built so Valsian could offer it to the woman he loved, Mary Munday of Clinton, La., the woman he brought home to the house on Frederic Street in December of 1908 as his bride.

As a wedding gift to the young couple, the DeJean and Munday families completely furnished the home. Most of that furniture, each piece handcrafted of oak and more than 100 years old, is still in use in the home today.

The two-story home also still contains a clawfoot bathtub that was first installed in 1906, and its rooms are appointed with five full fireplaces, each surmounted by an ornate mantel.

Valsian DeJean built the home on a plot of land he owned that stretched from Cedar Street (now Frederic) on the east to the banks of the Pascagoula River on the west, and from its present-day north boundary south down to Krebs Avenue.

THE HOME IS constructed with hardwood floors, 14-foot ceilings, handcrafted transoms over all the downstairs doors, and heart of pine DeJEAN HOUSE ON Frederic Street, Pascagoula, is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. At one time, the house was in danger of being demolished for the proposed high-rise bridge over the Pascagoula River.

DeJean house is added to national register

By MIKE WIXON

Mississippi Press City Editor

Last year Julia-Mae DeJean was successful in preventing a proposed multi-million dollar high-rise bridge over the Pascagoula River from turning her 87-year-old home on Frederic Street into kindling.

She was touted in magazines, newspapers and television news programs across the South as "the little old lady who fought big government and won."

Now, Miss DeJean, 80, has successfully gotten her home placed on the National Register of Historic Places.

She was informed of the selection recently by the Mississippi Department of Archives and History.

"I'm thrilled to death. This just makes my day," said Miss DeJean, who was born in the home.

Miss DeJean's home was built in 1906 by Ambrose Linder for her father, Valsian Pierre DeJean and his bride, May Mundy. DeJean owned and operated the family business on Krebs Avenue, DeJean and Mitchell General Merchandise and Ship Chandlery, established by his parents. He served as Jackson County Commissioner of Finance from 1919-40 and again from 1945-53.

The Queen Anne style home sticks out from the other homes on Frederic Street. An iron fence surrounds the house, and a breezy porch gives an inviting look. Functional green shutters are on each side of floor-length windows that open onto the veranda, designed to allow the cool gulf breezes pass through. The lawn is manicured to perfection.

Inside, antique furniture, most dating back to the turn of the century and still in mint condition, lines the walls of the 15 rooms of the two-story house.

Walls are covered with old family photos is over architectural or engineering design or the site had on law, religion, transportation, government and historical individual's life and such.

For a home or site to be placed on the National Register it must meet a stringent list of requirements. Such things as remodeling or additions must be done as to not take away from the historical background, according to Betty Bensey, grants coordinator for the city of Pascagoula and a member of the Pascagoula Historical Preservation Society.

Miss DeJean enlisted the services of Ocean Springs architect Bruce B. Tolar to get her application considered by the Department of Interior, National Parks Service.

"I couldn't have handled that by myself. He had to measure everything, make drawings, take pictures," she said.

"This is the first time I tried to get my house on the list. People had been asking me about it. So I hired an architect and we did it."

over the doors.

Miss DeJean, who was crippled by an automobile accident in 1980 and relies on a wheelchair to get around, has been hospitalized three times since October. But she says she is feeling much better and the honor for her gives her new life.

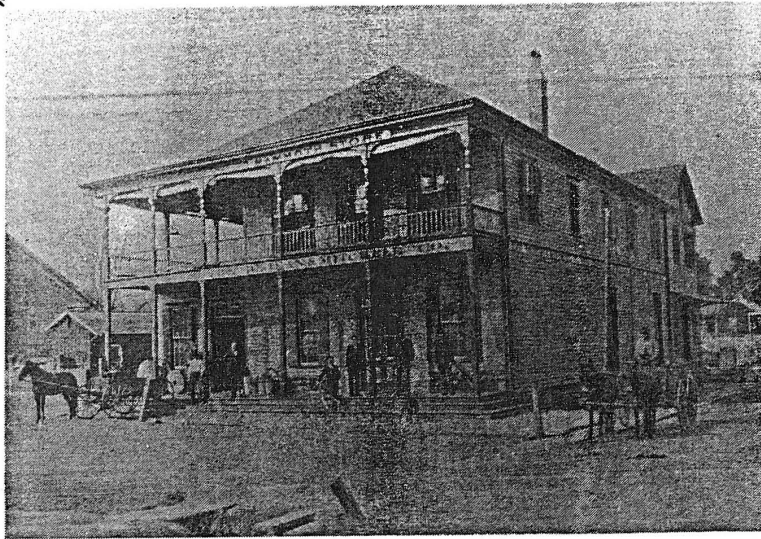

Thomas C. "Tommy" Wixon Jr., president of the Pascagoula Historical Preservation Society, was delighted to hear the news about Miss DeJean's home. He said PHPS had been contacted by the Mississippi Department of Archives and History about the home.

"We told them it was wonderful and so much has been done (placed on the Historic Register before)," Wixon said.

"We're delighted. It's one of the great examples of a ginger bread home in town. In mint condition, like her mother walked in as a bride."

I have three Niel to Snider marriages in Tuscaloosa Co., AL. and at least one Niel Snider. As you know these claims were filed by agents sent to Charleston, so you can conclude that claims made on the same day were for individuals in the same community. In his history of the Snider family Josiah said he 'thought' his grandfather was named Jacob, and that during the war he served under General Putman. He also related that while the men were off fighting; the Tories and Indians raided and ransacked his home where the women and children had taken refuge while the men were gone and frighten the children. I believe there is an account of this in Salley, but haven't found it yet. Oh yes, I didn't mention that the plat was on high ground between waters of the Saluda and Edisto, placing it in Lexington, Co. Would like to hear from anyone about this!

That sounds reasonable....I know about the Josiah Letter, and can add another Neil Snider born in late 1800's to a descendant of Jacob and Susannah. I don't have Josiah's letter in front of me, but I think that it said Under General Putnam, I think. There were an awful lot of I thinks in that letter as I recall.

If anyone is interested in the descendants of Matthias and Christiana Price Snider, I have figured out most of them through 1900. BTW, I have no record of a LUDWIG Snider, so he probably will turn out to be a LUDWIG LINDER. The L and S show up so similar, and the in vs ni could be confused also.

Found the item I wanted to include in my previous message: ' Cloud's Creek, 17 Nov 1781, Capt. Sterling Turner's part of Patriots were overtaken by Cunningham's Tories and all but two were killed.' (Roadside marker on SC #391, n. of Batesburg near Saluda Co. line). This may not have occurred, depending on the timing of course, had my ancestor, Capt. Wm BEAL, not failed in an attempt to kill Bloody Bill.

"When Capt. Beal learned of his mother's injury, he sought revenge and soon encountered Cunningham somewhere along Wilson's Creek. Beal, on horseback, dashed forward, and Cunningham put spurs to his horse, then checked his horse and fired his pistol, killing Beal's horse. Beal extricated himself and drew his own pistol, daring Cunningham to come nearer, but Cunningham galloped away. Beal was quoted as saying he could have shot Cunningham, but wanted to put him to death with his sword." [Margaret Watson, 'Greenwood County Sketches', Attic Press] I just wanted to toot my horn a little!

Now let me slip this in:

William Beal m - - - --

James Wilson m. Tabitha Beal

James McCracken m. Elizabeth Wilson

James McCracken, Jr. m. Naomi Anderson

Edward I. F. Hughes m. Emma Rebecca McCracken, my great grandparents.

> Nelson Little: I don't believe the Linders were living in Lex Co. at the time of this event. Your Jacob, Jr. born 1766 would have probably been too young to serve, I would think. Jacob, Sr. too old, b.1739, for a private, which this individual most certainly was.

As for the land indexed as Ludwig Snider, write the SC Archives about this, you may like to have a copy of the plat anyway. In the Linder family sheet the land was recorded in Colonial Plats, Vol. 12, page 62.

I am a descendent through my father from Ludwig LINDER and his son Jacob's Georgia families. Sometime in the 1760 zone, Jacob married an Elinor last-name-not-known. Might she have been a Snider? Can anyone make that connection?

I have thought that part of Ludwig LINDER's landholdings also were in colonial Berkeley district, but not in the Lexington County area, although there are now many LINDLER families scattered around the Dutch Forks of the Saluda River(likely related??).

>From various other history readings, I thought that most of the Linder property in Orangeburg District was toward present-day Bamberg County, but I'm a novice and may be very off base.

Any ideas/knowledge of where the Linder Mill was? It is sited in Ludwig Linder's will as part of the property to be held by sons Daniel and Jacob.
